What is Lyrebird Health?

Lyrebird Health is a medical scribe tool to help health practitioners record accurate clinical notes during a patient consultation.

Lyrebird Health listens in the background, capturing only the relevant details relating to clinical documentation requirements. These details are then transcribed into text to be sent to your health practitioner's Electronic Medical Record system.

Here's what you need to know:

- Transcription is performed exclusively within Australia
 - Audio file is immediately destroyed post-transcription
 - Transcription is redacted of sensitive, personal identifying information received
 - The transcript is encrypted - it is not stored in its original form
 - Only your health practitioner can access this content
 - At the discretion of the practitioner, data may be stored temporarily in Lyrebird.
- If you have any questions, please ask your health practitioner.
